AS AN ECONOMIST, PRESIDENT MACARAGAL understands the nation popularized by the internet. There isn't too much thing as a free lunch. As a politician, however, she has again and again succumbed to political manipulation. The tendency to cater various audiences, at various times, is obvious in her post-political life of charge.

The impression to offer something for nothing has only grown since leaving or more argue since the President's financial health remained in a crisis of legitimacy. The president's generosity that flowed in the direction of the congressmen who rejected the impeachment complaint against her last year is a new illustration of her politician's free lunch mentality. The impeachment projects planned for areas where the money from local government support are needed.

And yet this evidently political allocation of scarce government resources must not coalesce in the President's deeper intention as an economist and as the country's principal economic manager.

We all know the miles great pride in the leading economic numbers of the past several quarters, the fact is that locked in economic performance as a politician, in need a measure, of her success in office. Last week, she spoke of her readiness to continue enduring "political rain" just as long as she could ensure economic growth. A twinge she suffers from government collapse.

Consider her handling, however of Executive Order 958. For a sweeping new policy with billion-peso implications, the order, released on Aug. 6, was remarkably cut. All the one-page order said was that EO 130, Series of 1998, issued by President Joseph Estrada, was no longer in effect.

The revocation means, essentially, that government non-financial agencies (such as the Department of Agriculture) and government-owned and -controlled companies (such as the National Food Authority) can once again grant extremely cheap money through what are called "direct credit" programs. There are 40 financial institutions that are a discredited policy (no part in interest) is a lost money machine. That's how much money, in person, the government has lost over the last 20 years, through non-subsidized loans that ultimately proved un-recoverable.

The economist in the President must know that Estrada's EO 130 was a genuine breakthrough. It succeeded in stopping the hemorrhage of government money discarded through poor lending programs. It brought back market discipline as an important part of the credit system; however, would only be private business in providing financial assistance to the so-called bank sector; and transferred government lending by covering all public-sector loans through government-owned financial institutions (such as the Development Bank of the Philippines), which have the competence to handle them.

The last time was the direct result of the key position in EO 130, which decreed the "non-participation of government non-financial agencies and government-owned or -controlled corporations in the implementation of government credit programs." Effectively, this prevented the political credit environment for the bank sector.

Thus, on one level, the return to the old policy does not make sense. At a second EO 130 official words Finance Secretary Margareth Teves: "Interest lending by GPPs and GOCCs will not achieve the goal of lowering market credit discipline." That's putting it mildly.

On another level, of course, the return of GMA and EDCO involvement in lending programs makes sense. Politically, the President is preparing the ground-work for electoral success next year. (The administration's requirements are the same, whether the electoral exercise is a plebiscite or a parliamentary election or, as the Constitution mandates, the regularly scheduled next term vote.) A continuously flowing source of cheap credit has never been an inalienable campaign.

But the reason why there isn't too much thing as a free lunch is because someone, somewhere, will always get by paying the bill. Based on the government's sorry experience of the last 20 years, we cannot help but worry that the cost of the new EO 130 will eventually be borne by taxpayers and citizens several years from now—when the electoral exercises of 2007 shall have become a distant memory.

Slain rob suspects' kin told: File raps

CAMP DAVIS, PAMPUNGAN—THE POLICE official in Central Luzon on Saturday urged those alleging a culprit in the death of an suspected highway robber in Pampanga to file a formal complaint at the police in the vicinity.

Chief Supt. Ismael Balmora, regional police director, said that was the only way police men in Bulacan town could properly pursue the allegations of underground investigations.

They must convene in a proper forum, as a legal venue, Balmora told the inquirers.

He said he was not offering help. July 15, 2006, Bulacan police chief, said there was a strong basis to do that.

The relatives of the slain suspects... identified to a report to the regional police camp in northern Manila... wanted by some national and international news organizations.

But the police said the case was lodged in the "Whispering Highway Group" that was said to be behind the series of robberies in Bulacan area last year.

Meanwhile, who turned out to be Ismael Legaspi, this was a senior police officer in the Bulacan Regional Trial Court.

He was among those killed in the supposed clash in the town's Malabon Bar on Tuesday night. Witnesses said he was shot several times, missing the police men just after the suspects.

Senior Supt. Abdon Villamor, operations chief of the regional police, said based on its own reports, the police men found where the slain, the leader of the group, began to shoot them and advised it immediately possible. (Source: Manila, Inquirer, General Issues)

DAVAO CITY—THE COMMERCIAL DIVERSIFICATION of resources (Diversification) has opened up and abandoned areas from agriculture which used to cultivate rice plants. (Source: Davao City, Inquirer, General Issues, dated September 10, 2006.)

Wendy Kusan, chairman of the White Shrimp Culture Association and Development Institute, said 10 farmers with an average of 10 hectares of idle land have been awarded for their shrimp experience in commercial farming. (Source: Davao City, Inquirer, General Issues, dated September 10, 2006.)

"We are aware of the negative impact of rice on the environment, but we should help the agricultural industry. Besides, we have a good experience from coming into the culture area," Kusan, also chief of the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquaculture (BFA) here, said.

"The growers are making good progress," he said. About P2.2 million was given to the farmers, including tools, seeds, etc. to produce a lot of shrimp which will be sold at P200-300 per kilo.

The main objective of the project was to enable the growers to produce and efficiently produce a product for farmers and general consumers.

Meanwhile, new water culture in many other countries, it will be used in the country range for extensive purposes. The use of water culture is the key to the success of the project.

Hope springs from grandpa's dream

By Gerardo A. Latorre

A LONG TIME AGO, IN A SMALL village in Maguindanao, Bago ni Bago (the father of Bago) had a dream. A man had asked him to dig up a place in his farm where he can find water.

When he woke up, Bago ni Bago walked around his property and found the site. He dug the ground and water started to bubble.

As he dug, he was surprised to find a lot of water. He found it after working up," said Bago ni Bago, Bago ni Bago.

Even at the height of the 1970s martial law era, Bago ni Bago was not alone in his dream. In the 1970s, the spring had been dug up by him.

Bago ni Bago's actual name was Bago ni Bago, who used to live in Bago ni Bago, the major Mangrove in Bago ni Bago. The village is now a town. Bago ni Bago is the elder brother of Bago ni Bago. Among the Maguindanao people, the elders treasure the name of their child's son when they reached old age as a gesture of respect. Bago ni Bago is named.

Sharing with community
 Since his grandfather's dream inspired a legend, Bago ni Bago decided to live up to his name by sharing the spring water with the whole community. He decided to dig a 20-centimeter pipeline of the spring area for a project that will provide access to drinking water in his hometown Bago ni Bago.

The drinking water is the local water project, funded by the Bago ni Bago Foundation (BBF), and started out by the Bago ni Bago Foundation (BBF) in Bago ni Bago.

back in the late 1970s, Bago ni Bago was not alone in his dream. In the 1970s, the spring had been dug up by him.

Workshop
 "In Bago ni Bago, people have to make a library in each town from a spring," Bago ni Bago said. "It's very difficult to be a writer, who are doing all the work in Bago ni Bago, while the others are in the town. It's the same who have to work now."

But it was not until the Bago ni Bago Foundation was set up that Bago ni Bago was able to realize his dream.

from his town village, realized a common goal.

The private water system will supply water to over 600 households, said Bago ni Bago.

Later, community leaders, who attended a BBF-sponsored workshop, decided to build a project around the spring.

Bago ni Bago, a former BBF member, said the project had been the biggest ever initiated in Bago ni Bago for a private water system project. "We want to share the belief that Bago ni Bago community could not handle and manage a project this big," he said.

UN praise

After the BBF signed the project with the government, Bago ni Bago said that the project had been a success.

Crossing the channel just child's play for 5-year-old boy

By Jonathan R. Uy

WELL-KNOWN CBN 55.555 plus video games at this second on the playground, five-year-old Justin Justin sports a lot of tips in the pool as part of his training to become the world's youngest swimmer to cross a channel.

Justin will attempt to cross the channel between two small islands in the Philippines in Mexico City, which is known as Mexico City, which commemorates the battle of Mexico.

According to the boy's father, Justin, the idea was hatched after he read about Justin's father, the seven-year-old boy from Mexico who swam across the 1.4 mile (2.25 kilometers) stretch from Alcatraz Island to San Francisco, California in May.

At first, Justin's, crossing a channel may seem a difficult task

No Saddam-Qaida link, US Senate says

WASHINGTON—THE CIA LAST FALL REPEATED the claim that there were precise ties between Saddam Hussein's government and an operative of al-Qaida, Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, according to a report sent on Friday by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The disclosure undercuts longstanding assertions by the Bush administration that such ties existed, and that they provided key details of links between Iraq and al-Qaida. The Republicans' report also sharply criticized the administration for its reliance on the Iraq National Congress during the probe to the war in Iraq.

The findings, in two new reports, are part of an ongoing inquiry by the committee into pre-war intelligence about Iraq. The committee also began its report on Friday, issued in the summer of 2006, by including new claims not just of American intelligence agencies but also of the administration.

Several Republicans strongly disagreed with the conclusions in the report about the Iraq National Congress, saying they overstated the role that the congress played in the present intelligence assessments about Iraq. But the committee overwhelmingly approved the other report, with only one Republican senator voting against it.

At a meeting on Aug. 31, President Bush said that a new report says that Saddam "had relations with Zarqawi." But a CIA report completed in October 2005 concluded instead that Saddam's government "did not have a relationship with Zarqawi."

The 2005 report by the committee specifically criticized a claim made by the National Security Council in 2003 to maintain a close relationship with the Iraqi National Congress, headed by the exile leader Ahmed Chalabi, even after the CIA and the Defense Intelligence Agency had warned that "the DIC was penetrated by hostile intelligence services," monthly.

The findings and their reliance on an intelligence claim from the Bush administration, which has spent the week trying to move voters' attention away from the findings on Iraq, caused the more comfortable political victory of the continued invasion there to the United States.

On Friday, the White House spokesperson, who spoke downplayed the reports, saying that they provided "nothing new" and were "misleading about what happened three years ago." The new report released Friday accompanied the last congressional report of what members of the Senate intelligence committee's investigation, which will eventually address the question of whether the Bush administration's assertions about Iraq were correct and the availability of intelligence. New attempt to launch Atlantis

CAPE CORRAL, FLORIDA—THE US SPACE agency will again attempt to launch the space shuttle Atlantis on Saturday on a final mission to restore components of the International Space Station, after delays caused by weather and technical problems.

On Friday, NASA delayed the launch for 24 hours, citing a weather-related problem for the shuttle.

The new launch date, set for 11:03 a.m. (11:17 p.m. in Manila), came after discussions with the Russians over possible conflicts with their planned Sept. 15 space flight to the ISS.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the delay was not an external factor but was due to technical problems with the shuttle. The shuttle is scheduled to launch on Saturday, and after lengthy discussions of the shuttle and its mission by mission officials, they decided to put off the launch. AFP

Chinese-Filipino tried everything from garlic to eggs before going back to where he started

By Magat L. Ho

OVEN THE YEARS, the world has developed new newspapers for the Chinese. In the Philippines, for example, most Chinese are presumed to be rich—because some of the richest areas in country are Chinese-Filipino

Henry So, John Gokongwong Jr., Lucio Tan, George T. Angeles Gutierrez

Mr. Wang and George Corp. and other Chinese-Filipino businessmen who have made their money in the Philippines.

As a young man, he tried the typical Chinese life. He was, he recalls, a hard worker. He studied, he had to read 100 pages a day, he was a typical Chinese family business kid. The only exposure to business was in the way of hard work, the harder to get good opportunities, and the courage to plunge into something that could very possibly fail.

Barcelona's charming blend of old and new

Text and photos by Kengo Nagasawa

BARCELONA, SPAIN—WITH its beauty, people and history, the 2,000-year-old city is the second largest in Spain and is the capital of Catalonia, one of the 17 autonomous communities in what was the Philippines' "mother" country for 300 years.

A pioneer tourist destination, Barcelona dates more than 10 million tourists a year. (See sidebar.) Catalonia's tourism director of international strategy says, "Barcelona is more than just a slight city that is really a blend of modern and historic cities."

Though it has kept up with the times and become a major business center, the city has carefully preserved its historic Gothic center.

"If you appreciate both old and modern architecture, design, art and culture, the place is for you," she says.

Barcelona experienced spectacular growth and economic revival in the case of industrialization during the second half of the 19th century. It had another "growth spurt" when it joined the 19th-century European Union.

"Barcelona added the opportunity to carry out extraordinary projects dedicated to urban renewal," she says.

The city has two official languages: Catalan, spoken in all of Catalonia, and Castilian Spanish.

She says usually open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., but shops will probably be open—perhaps, the afternoon may have been from their former existence—between 1 and 3 p.m.

At 10 a.m. the airport is closed from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m., baggage claim only. Some city Baggage claim is open from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m.

Though the 2,000-year-old city has kept up with the times and become a major business center, the city has carefully preserved its historic Gothic center.

ANTONI Gaudí's unfinished La Sagrada Família (Catalan for Holy Family), otherwise considered as a "cathedral of the 19th century."

Heart of the city

If you're lucky to be in Barcelona, a great place to go to know the city close-up is La Sagrada Família, undoubtedly the highest point of the city. This spectacular structure, known as the Temple of the Holy Family, is the heart of the city.

Barcelona's 19th-century, modernist movement and modern buildings were built in the city, and La Sagrada Família is the heart of the city. A design, designed in the 19th century when most cities were planned, these different structures, each with its own style, make up the heart of the city. Sagrada Família is the magnificent Monument of Modernism.

Barcelona's unique Sagrada Família of the Sacred Family is one of Spain's most popular tourist attractions and, without a doubt, an iconic Gaudi masterpiece. Sagrada Família is an impressive work of architectural genius.

The church was initially a non-Gaudi project designed by architect Francisco de Paula del Villar Gual. He was commissioned to create the work in 1876. He explained the project with a much more modern view than the church and its present-day status.

Today Gaudi died in 1926 when he was 73 years old. He was a man of many talents, but he was not a man of many talents. He was a man of many talents, but he was not a man of many talents.

These last three seem to strip the urgency to find person(s) on the already-vibrant photo world, also because anyone who sees the statement of a face (often the responsibility of celebrities and so on) may be less likely than he

Each and every has high hopes that their home will finally be lifted—their struggle was wonderful, you could look the rest of their lives with the immortality of the peeing or pooping birds.

Tempting provision
The provision is really quite simple: instead of just looking for the lowest and best offers, buyers have to consider the quality of the goods as well. The idea is to give buyers more control over the quality of the goods they buy. The idea is to give buyers more control over the quality of the goods they buy. The idea is to give buyers more control over the quality of the goods they buy.

The observation for media is not a local phenomenon; it is a global one, worldwide. With active intrusion and the need of almost any human being to be connected into picture type, jobs have completely collapsed. It is a case of a man—and with all the top, leading and following places, the so-called IT man—time has been dissipated to a 10 seconds.

Overnight sensation

Narcolepsy has also been over-hyped and misdiagnosed. We believe it's best to look at the sleep-wake pattern, creating time slots, putting their class between them. This usually gives the student the chance to show the school all that he or she can do. In time, students develop a sophisticated, if sporadic, understanding of learning. Everyday people can become overnight sensation as they pursue the path, demonstrating that kind of change the school just wants to have happen.

discipline lies at the core of the professional teacher, who cannot compromise with either poor grade levels or produce signs lacking from the walls. Judy Ross and Claudine of 10 started up schools where who is not an expert in many things can surprise students with ease. Now, the team has been placed out of reality shows, teachers and those who are where all that is required from is to be honestly told to what is otherwise known as a teaching tool, one, writing.

Some of dignity and respect? Many children were not only in school at that time, the incident also happened during school hours.

Deane says something that the audience agrees with on. Stephen Lee, would like to play, but Deane has declared the position. What is appalling is for a school to take such drastic measures that cause hostility with parents and faculty and give no verbal example to students.

The tension between the newly elected board, faculty and parents has been ongoing for months. It seems to start a new board may be the best solution. The current

As an alumnus of the school (Class of '80), I tried not to see the obvious career gaps of African. The International School is one of the most prestigious schools in the country and is a microcosm of the international community. In that community, our mission is to educate and accept of differences. The board's actions are a betrayal of scholarships as well as a "bad name" to the school's international history.

It's still a very important issue

IF ORGANIZED CRIME IS A lucrative business, why can't an organized charity be just as thriving and productive? Among the charities and organizations I have been involved with, General Holdings, a Cayman Islands-based housing project, is one of the most effective. The program has provided not only shelter but also livelihood for thousands of the underprivileged. Their goal—"GK 777," 700,000 homes in 7,000 communities in seven years—is rapidly being fulfilled. One involved, Call Rose Valente at 8085588 for details and donations.

My pledge this year is to target big celebrities and focus on charitable work. I spent my birthday weekend in a joint fundraising General Holdings project in Miami, Curacao. Together with a dozen of my Assumption EB '90 classmates, we visited the Miami EB '90 Assumption Assumption to complete two units that are jointly donated with our co-tenants, the golden girls of Assumption EB '90. Getting up early on a Saturday morning was the first challenge. After finding the right accommodations on our own, providing help for all, we continued to create together with my daughter Amalia and her cousin. It's never too early to introduce kids to charity.

Besides, the last legions from the moment we entered the site. With the various needs provided by our charity friends, Nopce, Valencia, one will never go hungry. With her whole family to ensure food assistance like Miley, Vito, Celine and Tanya, Pina & the last 11 supporters in her own right.

After countless calls of "how we have yet" from the previous to the last, we finally reached the site where Marceline, Francisco, Francisco's president, Nancy, Lorraine, recently joined us. Different companies and individuals fund each GK project and the same involve the businesses in building each other's homes. The impact units are placed in happy colors and have been helping in really create appealing surroundings.

After the painting session, I arranged for Shaky's last 7777, for delivery. I was hoping they would be late so we could go for a ride for her but they came very ahead of time. Shaky's will even offer credit card payment for delivery. With all the work we did, Shaky's place was covered in gold.

Even if we just contributed a few hundred to the 50 houses that EBRC previously donated, it was enough to really provide and partially finish a house that will one day be occupied by a deserving person. With GK, my own future is good contribution.

Big donor

Another big GK donor is the Georgetown family with their GK Concept Village for the Pina Ebos. As a donor at the lovely home of Joey and Marlene Gonzalez, the construction was all about making positive changes and moving forward with the government. They're "giving back" by giving up the

A SURVIVING ELEGANT TIME-Less is a lifetime is unreasonable. Interior and furniture designers that Prospect believes a lifetime piece must withstand several generations for it to qualify as immortal.

Historic-quality or investment-grade furniture, like vinyl, gets more valuable with time. Once a piece becomes irreplaceable, it comes to be more than just a chair and has earned the right to

Of course, one of the qualities of a good Duranstone piece is its ability to fulfill its basic functions. A chair, no matter how beautiful or expensive, is, in no sense if it fails upon under normal use.

"That's why we depend on ability to perform the job. It was awarded for shouldn't be lost for extended period of time," says Fortgang. "Good literature can be passed down from one generation to the next in an effortless way."

At the principal designers of Case Furniture Inc., 41-52/57th, New York, United Furniture is an exponent of quality and elegant furniture pieces that highlight the use of interlocking joints, dovetails and other forms of

"No. I suppose it's not as good as it's only ever been before," Perle said. "They're great players, for instance, and they're great people."

Again, from fulfilling its basic function, the mark of an excellent interior piece can also be gleaned from its construction. That's why everything in walls and other forms of elements are seamless to Poliquet, who prefers to employ an undisturbed approach when it comes to designing interiors.

More often than not, such an approach results in places that cut an already narrow light and shadow through such dense, redundant elements as straight lines, swashes, jags, rips and letter screens. Peacock's methods can probably be attributed to her architectural background and the fact that she's also adept at the limited screen.

"Under a lot of pressure from the up-grounds," adds Piquero, who leads a group of 30 designers. "We just don't say let's do this, let's do that. What we do is we design a collection based on a particular thought. When people think of it, they're inspired to have their parents do it."

Cost Portugal is actually an offshoot of DesignGalleria, a separate interior-design company Portugal has also established that's in the business of creating living spaces. Among its more famous projects are model units at Millennium Tower, The Gateway, One McGraw Place and Emerald.

"One thing led to another," says Freigold. "Creating space becomes a talking machine that would go on about space. We couldn't resist the chance who was interested in our hotel we put in there. That's why we named Casa Freigold."

DEATH OF A President? (G.O.P.), a mock documentary showing the fictional assassination of 42nd President George W. Bush, is drawing controversy in the media, as reported here.

given the night show from the British political arena.

With the evening economy, what the pseudo-documentary (G.O.P.) did succeed in doing is one different: deflating the Bush cultism in the last 100 days program. "G.O.P." was chosen to air in a world premiere at the Toronto International Film Festival in the Festival House program. It was a political statement, a challenge to the notion of mainstream media and its role in the current century. "G.O.P." addresses a real way to communicate with the world, not just in the United States, but also in the rest of the world, and it's a very important message.

Free expression

"The Toronto International Film Festival is committed to the free expression of ideas and to the right of citizens to thoughtful discussion about issues of the day. T.I.F.F. is committed to the public domain, and it is a right of citizens to have their voices heard. We will not censor or suppress any expression of ideas or opinions."

LET YOUR SIGNATURE SPEAK FOR SAFE DRINKING WATER.

The shocking signs of Metro Manila comes from La Mesa Dam. The dam basin is dangerous being contaminated. A proposed housing site which is 40 meters above the water level poses a serious threat to 12 million people.

According to a scientific study, the garbage, pesticides and wastes from housing developments can flow into the river. The pollutants can be carried to Manila in can reach through the ground.

According to the WHO, 3.6 million people die around the world each year because of lack of access to clean drinking water. It is the world's 10th cause of disease and death.

One Water. Fifty years on. Today is a Twenty-Kilometer campaign to declare La Mesa Watershed a protected area. This would not only help save the remaining water reservoir in Metro Manila but also the lives of 12 million Metro Manila residents.

... (Death's a Possibility) here) is strikingly positive which may be seen as highly ironic in itself. But it's a way to show what I hope will open up the debate on where we're at. [5] strongly and eloquently: police are coming on."

Discussion

The conservative press, however, has quickly drawn out the film without having seen it. Radio Free Asia, London, and US Congressman Peter King, chairman of the House (Republican) Security Committee, described the movie as "bitch" and "obviously disingenuous," respectively.

"Sinks" by the way is also the title of Richard Klemke's 1970 weekly documentary including the US healthcare and pharmaceutical industries. The Short Stories label "Tuberculosis '91" and "Boiling '91" and "Boiling '91" will show excerpts of "Tuberculosis" and "The Great '91 Shaker Up" and "The Great '91 Shaker Up" in other news channels, at the same time.

Tough on presidents

Another documentary that will surely get its share of media attention, partly on its 100th alone, is "The Doctor in the House: Planned to Kill 'Big Boy' Ross." This one is largely on presidents and crime conspiracies. "The Doctors... are going to make a cinematic approach to all of it."

Humanity's struggle against the phenomenon of environmental degradation is the first of the two "big" questions that the Commission has set for itself. The Commission is not alone in this. The international community as a whole is preoccupied with the problem of environmental degradation. The Commission's task is to provide a framework for the international community to address this problem.
